Write a short (one paragraph--you can do it!) autobiography which gives insight into how your life has led you to this present moment of desiring to commit to YFLA. (Why? Why now?)

Write about your relationship to feminism—the word, the idea as you understand it. What does feminism mean to you?

Describe a moment in which you felt like a leader. What was the moment, and what were some things you learned?

Share your pronouns if you like. For more information on why pronouns matter, check out <https://www.myprouns.org/what-and-why>.*

Briefly, what do you hope to gain from participating in the Young Feminist Leadership Academy? What concerns or questions come up for you regarding this commitment?

What are your coping strategies for dealing with physical and emotional discomfort: the stress of new challenges, different personalities, less-than-perfect weather, food or beds?

How do you see yourself contributing to YWWf(a)C and/or your other communities as a future leader? Try to be specific!

In a few sentences or bullet points, share any brainstorming ideas you might already have about a possible practicum project. (This won't lock you into a project!)
